OUR story

ADELA was started out of our recognition of shortfalls in the industry. So many firms look to make their money on one project, while we prefer to stay competitive, forward-thinking and open to challenging projects which come our way. At ADELA, we search out the newest industry trends and when we find a value-added product, service, or process, we share that with our clients to build lasting relationships.

We've come to realize that transparent and open communication is where the process begins. The first and most important part of the ADELA process is a well developed and communicated plan. Whether it is real estate analytics or feasibility studies, design, development, or construction management...communication and planning is the key to our mutual success!

OUR secret

At the heart of our success, is clear, concise, and effective communication. We have designed, built, and implemented our cloud-based construction management software (CMS) to aid in this effort.
